

SMFA Master Type List

Please see page 76 (the chapter on Your Bullseye) in the 4th edition of Self-Management for Actors: Getting Down to (Show) Business for detailed instructions on how best to utilize these words as you discover your bullseye, as an actor.

Good luck. Have fun with this. And let us know how it's going for you!

addicted	childlike	dumb adventurous	chubby	eager aggressive	clever	eccentric all-American	close-minded	educated aloof	comical	efficient amoral	commanding	elderly analytical	community leader	elegant angry	complex	embodiment of evil anonymous	concerned	enabler anxious	condescending	enthusiastic articulate	conservative	entitled artistic	cool	ethical assertive	cougar	excitable athletic	cowboy	excited attractive	crazy	exotic
awkward	cunning	fearful
bad	curious	feisty
badass	curvy	forthright
bastard	cute	fragile
beautiful	cynical	frat boy best friend	dangerous	frustrated big-city	dedicated	fun-loving bitch	defiant	funky
blue-collar worker	desperate	funny bold	detective	gay
bootylicious	determined	geeky boss	direct	girl-next-door bouncer	disgruntled	good ol' gal boy-next-door	distant	good-natured busy-body	doctor	goofball caring	dogmatic	gorgeous charming	doofus	grounded chatty	douchebag	handsome cheerful	druggy	happy

hard-boiled	military	rockstar healthy	misunderstood	romantic heartthrob	moody	rugged helpful	musician	sad
hero	mysterious	sarcastic
hippy	nerdy	sassy
homebody	newbie	scientist
honest	nosy	searching
hooker	nurse	secretary
hottie	open-minded	seducer humble	optimistic	seductive hunky	parental	self-assured husky	partier	self-made hyper	patient	selfish
ill	perfectionist	sensible ingénue	perky	sensitive innocent	perplexed	sensual insecure	philosophical	sentimental integrity-filled	police officer	sexual intelligent	poor	sexy
intense	popular	shameless
intuitive	poser	shocking
jerk	positive	shy
jock	powerful	sidekick
judge	pragmatic	slacker
judgmental	precious	sleazy keeping a secret	predator	slimy know-it-all	pretty	small-town laid-back	princess	smarmy law enforcer	privileged	smart lawyer	professor	smarty-pants leader	proper	smooth
leading lady/man	provocative	socialite lecherous	psycho	soft liar	punky	solid
lighthearted	pushy	sophisticated loose	quirky	sporty
loveable	relatable	stripper loyal	religious	strong
menacing	reserved	stylish metrosexual	resilient	suave middle-class	responsible	suck-up
MILF	rich	suspicious

sweet	troubled	weak
tabloid reporter	trust-fund baby	wealthy talkative	trustworthy	white-collar teacher	uneducated	wicked tech-savvy	unemployed	wild child technophobic	upper-crust	wimpy terrorist	vapid	wise
thrifty	victim	witty
thug	villain	world traveler tolerant	violent	young
tormented	vivacious	yuppie
tough	voluptuous	zany
tourist	waiter	zealous

For the truly ninja: Ask your respondents to include perceived ethnicity and age range, plus possible nationalities, any specific shows that would be a good fit for your type, genres of films that would best suit your vibe as a performer, brands and products for which you might be a good commercial storyteller, all of it! The more specific information you gather through this process, the better.

As you analyze your data, remember, we're looking for patterns here, not some single, authoritative assignment of your most castable type. The more people you survey, the better. The less intimately they know you, the better. Have fun with this process, and check in with us at the message boards to let us know how it's going for you.